Property management software training now comes with CPD points

Property management software provider Rockend now offers Continuing Professional Development (CPD) points with its short courses as a result of a new partnership with education provider Kaplan Professional.

John Goddard, CEO, Rockend said, "This is a bonus to the many property managers who undertake our courses, and a great time saver – they can learn with us and contribute to their CPD points at the same time."

According to Paula Irvine, General Manager Real Estate, Kaplan Professional, "Rockend are a premium provider and as such their courses warrant the recognition given via CPD points. The new CPD awarded to Rockend validates the high calibre of their courses which have in turn led to higher standards in the Australian property management industry.

"This is especially significant given that to date, CPD has been the focus of sales rather than property managers. Rockend are to be commended in that they are the first to combine their skills training with CPD points for property management courses.

"Our partnership with Rockend means Kaplan Professional now offers premium property management training in addition to our licensing, registration and other CPD course offerings. Like all Kaplan Professional courses, Rockend's course content is designed by industry experts. Their experience and expertise delivers practical hands-on content to give property managers the best tools for success in servicing and exceeding landlords' expectations."

Rockend's range of courses ensure property management professionals fully utilise the software to their business' best advantage. Courses include essentials, property managers, advanced property managers, bookkeeping, basic commercial and advanced commercial.

Rockend's range of CPD courses are delivered in Sydney, Brisbane, Adelaide, Perth and Melbourne along with select regional areas throughout Australia. To find out more about each course and how to enrol, call Rockend at 1300 657 700 or visit www.rockend.com.au. For advice on CPD and CPD requirements call Kaplan Professional on 1300 798 006.
